

Exhibit 4: Landowner support for Sierra Club

Quotes:

"The difference is the for profit company Branstad represents is saying, "shut up, trust us, sign away your rights to your own land." The non-profit is saying "landowners you have a choice. And by banding together you also have a voice." It's about money for Branstad's employers; it is not about the good of the farmer. The only people coming out in support of the pipeline are those that stand to profit off it. It is not green or the environmentalists wouldn't be opposed to it and it's not for the farmers or they wouldn't be opposed to it. Branstad is no longer an elected official but a paid spokesman. He went from representing lowans to representing his employer". Said Mike Ossian, landowner from Clinton County.

"I appreciate the Sierra Club's support of farmers in this fight against Summit. Taking my land without my consent is WRONG on every level", said Dan Wahl, farmer and landowner from Dickinson County.

Gordon Garrison, farmer and landowner from Emmet County stated, "I am grateful that a civic minded organization, like the Sierra Club of Iowa, has stepped forward to help Iowa landowners protect what they hold dear – their private property rights. Branstad and Summit Carbon Solutions wish to take our private property for their private gain."

"Sierra Club has been a valuable resource to help me learn and become aware of a network of many landowners who share my concern for the damage to our land and the danger to our communities these pipelines will cause". Stated James Fetrow, Cerro Gordo County landowner.

"Summit's Senior Policy Advisor Terry Branstad, a self-professed longtime friend of Summit's CEO Bruce Rastetter, is promoting Summit's hazardous pipeline through Iowa. Mr. Branstad is with a project which will threaten eminent domain on voters who supported him. The Iowa Chapter of the Sierra Club will not profit from this project. I will show them the respect they deserve by listening to the information they are providing. It would be foolish not to." Said Deb Lavalle, Landowner in Hardin County.

"I am proud to be working with the Sierra Club because they are the first group to help us organize to protect our farms which have been in our families for a very long time in most cases. I don't appreciate Summit and Branstad trying to control the narrative the way they are doing. I also don't appreciate the marketing mail I have received from Summit when they refuse to make the landowner lists public. At the present time, we have no way to organize on our own, and Summit is trying to use that to their advantage. Shame on them!" said Lori O'Brien, landowner from Plymouth County.

"I feel that the Sierra Club is assisting Iowa landowners in defending their property against the Iowa Utilities Board and Summit Carbon Solutions who are attempting to take away our rights. The Sierra Club is looking out for the citizens of our state against those who wish to deny us access to owner information, which affects our ability to organize as a group." Said Lori Goth, landowner in Dickinson County.

My name is Dana Arndorfer I am a Iowa landowner/ farmer together with our group of farmers/landowners we stand hand in hand with the Sierra club to stop Summit/ Branstad from taking our land with there forever easement.

I am proud to be working with the Sierra Club in regard to the fight against the Summit and Navigator CO2 pipeline. As I have been more involved it doesn't matter whether I am a member or not, the Sierra Club is supporting the landowners and their rights. As well as providing information that the large corporation chooses not to provide. It feels as though the Sierra Club is one of the people/ groups that is looking out for the landowner, not the corporation trying to profit on those landowners. There is absolutely no way my wife or I will ever sign an easement. Mitch Magill, landowner in Iowa County.

Gerry and Jodie Bredlow, landowners in Hancock County Iowa.

If it wasn't for the Sierra Club of Iowa proactively helping us landowners to resist the bullying of Summit Carbon Solutions we'd be completely helpless. The Sierra Club is providing meaningful helpful guidance, as we can't do this alone. Thank you Sierra Club!

Summit Carbon Solutions is using their money, power, influence with politicians along with intimidation of landowners to benefit a few (themselves) while misleading the public. Summit Carbon Solution is NOT a utility and does not provide any benefit to anyone but themselves yet the Iowa Utilities Board is assisting them with leeway to pursue their self serving venture all on the backs of Iowa landowners. Summit Carbon Solutions MUST BE STOPPED!

Marian & Keith Kuper, Landowners in Hardin County - As an American owner of farmland, I'm proud to be working with Sierra Club on behalf of Iowa landowners who are being railroaded into signing away many of their private property rights right now by deep-pocketed pipeline companies like Bruce Rastetter's Summit Carbon Solutions LLC and Texas-based Navigator Ventures LLC.
