"I appreciate the Sierra Club's support of farmers in this fight against Summit. Taking my land without my consent is WRONG on every level."

Dan Wahl, Farmer & Landowner in Dickinson County

"I am proud to be working with the Sierra Club because you are the first group to help us organize to protect our farms which have been in our families for a very long time in most cases. I don't appreciate Summit and Branstad trying to control the narrative the way they are doing."

Lori O'Brien, landowner in Plymouth County

Sierra Club is working with hundreds of Iowa farmers and landowners to stop the proposed Summit carbon pipeline. Summit does not want us to unite because then we will have enough power to stop these pipelines. That's why they have switched tactics to attack the Sierra Club and the growing group of landowners who are fighting to protect their land.

Our coalition is diverse and we're growing by the hundreds. We are rural, urban, farmers, non-farmers, Republicans, Democrats, young, old and everything in between. We all have different reasons for being against these pipelines and that makes us powerful.

Because of this united coalition, Summit is having major problems getting landowners to sign forever voluntary easements to take their land. That means these companies are increasing pressure on Iowans across the state and even issuing attack ads on Sierra Club and the landowners.

We won't let Summit interfere with the important work that is happening to stop the pipelines. They know that if we fight each other, we won't have the resources to fight the pipeline companies. We see through their tactics and it shows how low these companies are willing to go to steal your land.

We won't stop these pipelines on our own, we'll stop them together.

For our land,
Jessica Mazour, Sierra Club Iowa Chapter

Resources:

We have compiled a list of resources so landowners know their rights and can help stop the Summit pipeline from being built.

The information being presented at the informational meetings does not tell the complete story. These pipelines are incredibly dangerous and if built, the land will never be restored.
